Pards - we were second best against Wolves

Bargain of the Week

Youngsters pick up a point

Charlton's U18s emerged with a hard-earned point following a goalless draw against Tottenham Hotspur at Sparrows Lane on Saturday morning.

A combination of new faces and more experienced academy regulars put forth a resilient effort against a highly-rated batch of Spurs starlets, including Crystal Palace product Jon Bostock and Ryan Mason, whose brace condemned the young Addicks to defeat in last season's corresponding fixture.

The hosts weathered some strong attacking play, but also created some good opportunities of their own through Jack Clark, trialist Jordan Hibbert and Steve Lozano-Calderon, but were also unable to break the deadlock even though both crossbars were rattled in the closing stages.

U18s coach Damian Matthew made a solitary change in his back five from the home reverse against Stoke City last time out, with Carl Jenkinson returning alongside Clark, Taylor Sinfield, Sam Long and goalkeeper Callum Christie. More of story 1

However, a debatable second-half penalty from Sylvan Ebanks-Blake, awarded for a foul by Bailey, pulled Wolves level.

And a brace from substitute Sam Vokes sealed the win for top-of-the-table Wolves to condemn Charlton to a first home defeat of the new season. More of story 2
